WAS LOST AT UNION STATION.

Deserted China Doli Turned Over to Matron Hunter.

William Ryan, a train caller at the Union Station, in passing through the ladies waiting room yesterday morning saw a small bundle of clothes in a corner of a sent. He picked it up and carried it to Matron Hunter's room, imagining that under the flimsy covering be could feel the beating filmsy covering he could reel the beating of a child's heart. He could almost hear the cry of an infant, deserted by its parents and left alone to face this cold, cruel world. The bundle was placed on a couch in Matron Hunter's room and Ryan searched the station for some clew as to the owners of the little bundle. Wrapped in one of Matron Hunter's shawls, not a sound cams from the bundle, not a whimper or cry was heard.

from the bundle, not a whimper or cry was heard.

Many persons came to see Ryan's find, and the face looking out of the bundle showed not the slightest sign of recognition for any of them, and it was decided to allow it to remain in the reception room over night.

During a long day there was a levee in Matron Hunter's room and many persons stared at the little face, and after it was all ever it was decided that never had there been a better charge. But how could it misbeliave, for it was a china doil?

Far away on some fast-speeding train some little girl is very sad over the loss of left doil and tears are occasionally shed and the child mother asks her own mother to get her another doil to take the place of the one she carelessly dropped at Union Station. And in Matron Hunter's room a state china fece stares unseeingly into space and in its china heart it misses its little-missing the child and it will go on staring into space until some other little child is made space until some other little child is made happy by the receipt of it.

Senate Passes Bill Increasing Salaries All Along the Line -Amendments Defeated.

MR. BAILEY OF TEXAS SPEAKS.

Says It Makes Little Difference What Salary Senator or Congressman Gets, as Washington People Manage to Get It All.

Washington, Feb. 4.-After a brief discussion to-day, the Senate passed, by a vote of 29 to 21, the bill providing for a 25-per-cent increase in the salaries of United States Judges. All amendments were voted down, including one to increase the salaries of Cabinet officers from $8,900 to $12,500 a year By the terms of the measure the following salaries are to be paid United States Judges: Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, $13,000; each Associate Justice, $12,500; Circuit Court Judges, $7,500; District Judges, $6,250; Chief Justice Court of Claims, $6,125; each Associate Justice, $5,-625; Chief Justice Court of Appeals, District of Columbia, $5,00; each Associate Justice, $7,500; Chief Justice Supreme Court, District of Columbia $6.750; each Associate

Bailey Sees New Public Danger. Mr. Bailey of Texas delivered his first speech in the Senate in opposition to the pending bill. He assumed, he said, that the action of the Senate in rejecting amendments to increase the salaries of Senators and Representatives and Cabinet officers was an expression of the deliberate opinion

Personally, he believed that the present salaries of Senators and Representatives were sufficient. Salaries ought to be only such as will maintain the recipient in doconcy and in comfort-nothing more. He believed that it mattered little what sala-ries were paid Government officials, as it seems to be a rule among Washington peo-ple "to assess us so that we shall have nothing left at the end of the year, any-

He was of opinion that the curse of official life in Washington was fast becoming the inability of the poor man to meet the expenses of official station. During the remainder of the day's session, the urgent deficiency appropriation bill, was under consideration, the Philippine tariff measure being laid aside temporarily. Mr. Hansbrough of North Carolina made a spirited defense of Judge Arthur H. Noyes, of the District Court of Alaska, and Alexander McKenzie, upon whom an attack was made in the Senate yesterday. This precipitated a long discussion of the Noyes case, legal and technical rather than personal. No action could be taken on this subject, but the discussion will be continued to-morrow under the latitude allowed when appropriation bills are pending.

John F. Dryden was inducted into office as the successor of the late Senator William J. Sewell of New Jersey.

Fifty-Sixth Annual Report. Insurance at its actual and lowest cost, with absolutely reliable protection to the Insurance at its actual and lowest cost, with absolutely reliable protection to the beneficiaries, has been the keynote of the management of The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company during the fifty-six years of its business life. What the results of conservative management really mean, Colonel Greene shows in his annual report to the members of his company, published elsewhere. He holds that life insurance company, and the only business that will bring unquestioned safety to the beneficiaries of the insured. The condition of the company, with its constantly continuing dividends, with its surplus of more than $7,000,000, and assets of $65,277,173, and with constantly growing business and financial soundness, are proof of his contention that only by legitimate methods can such positive safety be obtained for beneficaries as The Connecticut Mutual shows in its life of fifty-six years.

It is shown in the answers to the circular letters that the most valuable species of the song and game birds are the ones that are disappearing the most rapidly; in fact, have been practically exterminated in the greater part of the State.

This decrease is attributed, in a pamphlet recently issued by the society, to the non-enforcement of Missouri's game laws. To remedy the extermination of birds, fish and deer the society makes the following suggestions:

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS FOR TABLE AND KITCHEN.

Salt.

Salt.

A similar instinct led man to choose salt as a common flavorer for nearly all his common floods. While regarding it as condiment only, which adds to the savoriness of other substances, it is really much more, and may have to be supplied artifically, as is lime in the water, in many instances, in order to maintain health.

Upwards of half the saline matter of the blood is said to consist of common salt; this being partly discharged every day through the skin and kidneys must be constitually replaced or the body must suffer.

The sodium of salt supplied a necessary element to the bile and its chiorine furnishes hydrochioric acid for the gastric tules affing in the digestive process. All the cartilages of the body must have their supply of soda, therefore cut off or stint the supply of salt and the bile will not be able to properly assist in digesting the food or the cartilages build up as fast as they naturally waste.

To judge, therefore, as to what food or foods should be partaken of from a theoretical standpoint may lead one into grievious errors unless we use that fine adjustment, common sense, in putting our deductions into practice.

Mix two ounces of wheat starch with enough cold milk to make a paste, then add gradually a pint of milk; then three-fourths of a cup of sugar, and wisk until the sugar is dissolved. Cook in a demie boller until it thickens; then remove from the fire and add half an ounce of butter. When cold add any flavoring desired and partially freeze the mixture. Then whip whites of two eggs stiff; add these carefully with a pint of whipped cream and freeze quite stiff. Beat up well before serving it with a fruit compote.

Cook a pint of oysters in their own liquor until plump; then drain; set oysters where they will keep hot. Strain the liquor carefully and reserve for the sauce, adding sufficient cream to make a cupiul. Brown a tablespoonful of butter; stir in a tablespoonful of wheat starch and then add the oyster liquor, and then the cream, hot; season to taste with salt and pepper and let it holl up. Add the oysters and a well-beaten egg had let it heat thoroughly, but not boil; just before serving add a teaspoonful of lemon juice and a little minced parsley.

Glazed Apples to Serve With Roast Pork.

Pare six large, tart apples and with a vegetable scoop cut out as many balls as possible, or core the apples and cut into iarge cubes. Put them into a glazed saucepan with two ounces of butter and the grated rind of one lemon and half a cup of sugar. Set over the fire and toss the apples about until they are cooked. Dish them up in mound shape with a border of triangular slices of bread dipped in egg and fried and sprinkled with sugar; sprinkle sugar over the apples and set the dish in the oven to brown slightly, or brown with a hot glazing iron.
